I has means that the quacks, 'regulars and adverting' physicians resolution Oregon on February physicians resolution for most of the terms. 8, last, are not subject to any of the partie

and penalties of this act These resident" quacks, pregulars and "advertising" physicians are not required to present any credentials to the medical board in shape of a diploma to submit to cram ination by the board or to may may incuse fee to the beard and they may continue to "advertise their business" without et or hindrance. The state medical board or unof deal with these resident advertising physiemns becau e they are specially exempted from its provisions, and this very exemption is fatal to the law as The Observable showed in its issue of September 3 to which noted the deci son of the supreme court of New Hancoshire, as follows of New Hannshire, as follows

The statule in question is framed in disregard of the principle of constitutional equality, because it exempts from its provisions those medical menand dentists who have resided and practiced in the lown or a ty of their residence since Janutry to skill learn ng or fitness for the practice of that profession, certain persons are exempted from the payment of it cease facts which others of qual

The Oregon statute and that of New Hampshire both impose this arbitrary test and this exemption from license ice. In our judgment Dr Cole or any other doctor may practice his profession in Oregon without a license, and i' indicted under this unconduintional law will win the moment be gets a judicial hearing. The amount disbutsed by the pension of fice for the year-ending June 30 wis $38.25, 113. It would be strange if so enormous a sum were disbursed without some imposition upon this magnificent charity of the nation. The primary object of a pens on that of helping men disabled through the mishelping men disabled through the mis-chances and calamilles of war and of con-tributing to the support of the dependent ones of those slap or disabled in service has so far outgrown its original intent that many of the more heavy pensioners are well to-do men, engaged in active business while an army of mei dicants with trui iped up ails, or disabilities that result from vile per sonal liabits feed snamelessly upon a charty to which they he en claim that, patriotism is bound to acknowledge. This abuse of the pension system has been a growth stimulated by the avarice, rather growth stimulated by the avarice, rainfer than by the access tiles of rice, and it has attained proportions that call for a prudent process of pruming

Among the notable designs are combinations of wings and fuffy made plumages. Some of these are beautifully arranged and suggest an angry bird with feathers so ruffled up us to conceal his head. There are many whole birds shown, but they are for the most part extremely small and are most artistically mounted. A favorite style seems to be a small bird, with the wings slightly ruffled and the whole effect is light, natural and extremely graceful.

About the Benefits Arising from the Practice of Summer Fallowing.

A Plea for the Farmer-Small Farms Are Prefer shie - A Few Dairy Matters - The Hop Crop.

When a wise farmer finds that a piece of ground which he has been cultivating does not yield its accustomed harvest, says the San Francisco Chronole, he does not give it over to weeds and brambles, but he summer fallows it, that is, he plows and harrows it and makes it ready for the seed and thee less it he a season unplanted. Observation and experience have taught him that he has taken something out of the land which only the forces of nature can restore, and that if he turns up the soil and exposes it to the wind and rain and sun, to the evening dows and to the mounday heat without requirements of the heavest ut will nt to the wind and rain and sun, to the even ing dews and to the noonday heat without requiring it to bring forth a harvest it will acquire new life and vigor, and the next year will be reasy to do its accustomed work. They who undertake to furnish the intellectual food supply of the world would do well to learn a lesson from the farmer and to practice summer fallowing upon themselver. Instead of compelling their brains to work right along, even in aid see rout and to produce a crop of ideas or suggestions annually with unwarying regularity, they should allow their minds to be fallow for a ce son in the fallest confidence that the next year scrop will be enough more abundant and value to two py them for the enforced lexure. But i they undartake to do this they must follow the farmer's plan to the letter. They must plow and herrow their brains first. They fault get rid of the stubble of former crops hey must clear out the weeds they must clear out the weeds they must clear out the tweeds they must clear out the there have baked and hardened and must prepare to receive the sweet and potent influences of nature in which lie the essence and element of repayentation and revivincation. They must weep away erroneous notions and abourd pelpidices, and gather up and burn the lot of anuquated i-ms and ologies which have beauth pelpidices, and gather up and burn the lot of anuquated i-ms and ologies which have cambered the ground, and then they will be in the proper condition of receivery.

As a general rule this is just what the

will be in the proper condition of receptivity.

As a general rule this is just what the brain worker does not do. If he finds that the soi is becoming fired or expansed that he has overcropped it or that the yield is sount and of poor quantity, he undertakes to stimulate it by artificial means. He puts on top dressings of elechol in some form or plows in some sort of pratterpite, the effect of which may be more dangerous than even alcoho and then he sows the seed and is de lighted in due time to reap what he deems an abandant harvest, but the last state of that men is worse than the first, for nature will be driven only so far, and when she finally revolts the result is mevitably ruin and disastar.

It would be easy for anyone with even a cursory knowledge of books and their au thors to point out scores of instances where the need of mental summer failowing is apparent. We are accustomed to say of a prolific author. "He is writing too just" but what was mean is that there is an obvious apparent. We are accustomed to say of a prolife author "He is writing too isst" but what we mean is that there is an obvious decadence in his writing, that this year's crop does not compare in quality with last year's and that he needs to summer fallow his brain. There have been in the world of letters a few exceptions to the rule a few authors who were tircless and inexhaustible, but so there is occasionally found a piece of land which is ready to respond to the invitations and advances of its possessor year after vear; but whether it be authors or land the exceptions are so few as to in nowise destrey the force of the general rule. A few isolated cases of writers whose nerves and brain matter have seemed formed of steel wire i briead of itssue cannot do away with the general poposition which has been the general p oposition which has been sought to be enunciated.

There would be attle difficulty in extending the fancied analogy indefinitely but a single additional suggestion.

ing the lancied analogy indefinitely but a single additional suggestion will be sufficient. In our pride of intellec we are accussioned, to lay great stress upon originality to prefer conceptions to herceptions and lo imagine that every discovery which we make is a genuiue one Solomon wis wiser than this generation for be declared that there was nothing new under the sun, and his deturn sit is stands ununpeached. But the suggestion is this As the soil of the fallow field is restored to life and vigor by what for ince of a better name, he called the chemistry of nature, meaning, perhaps, the absorption of elements held in solution in the fir the rain and the sunlight, so the brain or intellect which is permitted to he fallow absorbs the elements necessivy for its rehal distance, and over the nay sterious action fallow absorbs the elements necessary for its rehal litation, and by the my sterious action or the vital forces these elements are trans muted and the mind of man is red and nour side. That the vanity or concent of the rian leads him to believe that his subsequence work is a direct sequence of creative power matters not. He may think what he pleads. The fact is that some force greater than he has been operating while he rest d and whe result which he believes due to him self a really the consequence of a power which we flust acknowledge though we can neither define nor classify it.

Small Farms are Prefirable.

Farmer and Dealer

There seems tut it tie room for argument whe attragues ton of land daysoon is propored research. That the prosperity of the state depends largely on small holdings whe a every seem is raised to its highest prostate depends largely on small holdings whe a cycly acre is raised to its highest product ve capacity, it sendent the every thinking man More homes mean greater demand for our various products. To the wheat raiser it means greater home consumption less money pand for freights, and to enry chieffer the feel the stock. Again it opens to all wage entriers more avenues to employment for nills, factories, shops and stores of all kinds will multiply as the population increases it consequence of the division of the land. Nothing is suffer than that the day is coming when the water power facilities of the rivers in he northern part of the state will be utilized to the full cipacity and for the interest of the state will be utilized to the full cipacity and fix yours, it is suffiquent for the needed power. When that day somes, the state can supply the greater part of the articles she consumes, and as we can produce them more chempts than we can profuce them more week that home When it reasoners which can only be chempter, and introduced which can only be done by cutting, up, the large tracts, and adopting the rule of small farm.

age uttaral resources which can only be done by cutting, up the large tracts, and adopting the rule of small farm.

A Floof or the Far ner.

Ont of a population of 60 000 000 savs the Far er and Bealer there are probably about 12 ke 000 who earn weges and two by work lar, and it is something over $6,000 engaged in agreelitural pen units and it appears that we have no other saide industry that employs and furn has a living for so many of our people. In fact this one industry feeds all the people and no other moustry feeds all the people and no other industry can have without it. Here there, we see that we have in this country more than 4000 000 people lyving without earning any wages and mo it to the live of the event of the versified interests be built up from our own raw material and means at hand and the people who are engaged in the work will con sume all the agriculturust produces, the market will be at home, and the nation will go on in prosperity, which is something that no nation has yet done without diversified interest.

THE MALTESE CROSS HOSE.

Now that the fire commissioners are contemplating making some much needed additions to the apparatus of the fire department, the following from the San Francisco Daigh Report of Septomber 10 will be of interest.

At Saturday afternoon's meeting of the board of her commissioners action of very great importance to the city was taken in a deel ion to make requisition for 5000 feet of Maluse Crosshone
